

Cumulative Effects Focus Group

Matachewan First Nation is working with Wabun Tribal Council and Mattagami First Nation through to create a Cumulative Effects Study (CUS) Procedure Manual. This manual will be used to preform future CUSs in our territory as needed.

With all of the mining and forestry going on in our area, Documenting cumulative effects in our area will help us get a better picture of how all of these pressures interact and affect us. We can then use this information to plan for the protection of our lands .

We are looking for Community Members who have knowledge of the land and our culture or wish to protect it to Participate in a Focus Group designed to create a list of our Valued Components. This could include moose habitats, population levels of specific plant and animal species, water bodies, etc.
